KAPLAN FOX & KILSHEIMER LLP

Over the past three decades, Kaplan Fox has been at the forefront of some of the most significant private antitrust class actions, securities class actions, derivative actions, and consumer class actions in the United States. Members of the firm have been appointed by federal and state courts as lead counsel, co-lead counsel or as a member of an executive committee in numerous actions. The following describes some of Kaplan Fox's major practice areas and its most significant recoveries.

ANTITRUST LITIGATION

For more than 30 years, the antitrust attorneys at Kaplan Fox have represented on a contingent fee basis businesses and individuals, on both a class and non-class basis, who have been injured as a result of price-fixing, customer allocation or other anti-competitive behavior, by sellers of a broad array of products and services.

Kaplan Fox is frequently at the forefront of significant private antitrust actions, and we have been appointed by courts as lead counsel or member of an executive committee for plaintiffs in some of the largest antitrust cases throughout the United States. Members of the firm have argued before federal Courts of Appeals some of the most significant decisions in the antitrust field in recent years. Robert Kaplan argued the appeal in In re Flat Glass Antitrust Litigation, 385 F. 3d 350 (3d Cir. 2004), and Greg Arenson argued the appeal in In re High Fructose Corn Syrup Antitrust Litigation, 295 F. 3d 651 (7th Cir. 2002).

Over the years, Kaplan Fox has recovered over $2 billion for our clients. Some of those recoveries include:

THEODORE N. KAPLAN Theodore Kaplan's practice in real estate, trusts and estates, and general business law is a continuation of the firm's original practice areas that was established many years ago. For that reason, it is no surprise that Mr. Kaplan provides a level of old-fashioned, personal attention to his client matters that is rarely seen today.

In the real estate arena, Mr. Kaplan's willingness to handle every detail of a transaction is extraordinarily valuable to his clients, many of whom live abroad. In addition to the typical elements of a real estate purchase, he often provides the unexpected—interviewing and contracting with architects, seeing to it that taxes and condominium fees are paid, and finding ways for his clients to work within building requirements and historic preservation laws.

The same hands-on, detail-oriented approach is applied to Mr. Kaplan's trusts and estates practice. For many of his clients, he operates much like a personal trust company, often providing advice and services that extend far beyond what one would expect from a law firm.

Mr. Kaplan has also developed a specialty in handling the often-complex estates of artists, writers, designers, musicians, and producers. Prior to joining Kaplan Fox, he served as general counsel to Sotheby's, and today draws upon that experience to provide sound advice on the sale or auction of art.

In the general business arena, Mr. Kaplan represents publishers, assisting them in the negotiation of publishing contracts and providing other services. In addition, he often works with young physicians interested in setting up practice, by handling practice purchases and drafting partnership agreements.

Mr. Kaplan's involvement in the arts extends beyond his practice at Kaplan Fox. He serves on the Council of the National Academy of Design; is a member of the board of the International Foundation for Art Research, and serves as secretary for the board of the Ballet Foundation. He has also been a member of the board of the Heckscher Museum, and was a former president and board member of the New York Committee for Young Audiences.

In addition, Mr. Kaplan serves as the chairman of the Planning Board of the Village of Northport, Long Island, and is a member of the Century Association.

Mr. Kaplan lectures frequently on the planning of artists' estates. For seven years, he held the position of adjunct professor at the Fashion Institute of Technology, teaching art law in the school's masters' programs for gallery administration and museum studies.

He has been a member of the firm since 1980.

Education:

- B.A., Reed College (1963)
